"So I had heard," said Amos. "But haven't you ever looked into a mirror?" The North Wind mumbled and groaned around the darkness for a while and at last said, "Very well. Climb on my shoulders and I shall carry you up to the highest peak of this mountain. When I have looked into your mirror, I will carry you down again to where you may descend the rest of the way by yourselves." He was large where Brother Hart was slim. He was fair where Brother Hart was dark. He was hairy. She smiled. "You're very gallant. Oh, look." "I think I've recognized someone," she said excitedly, preening her paper feathers with her free hand. "Far, working for you!" he shouted, "He never fooled me for a second! But he wasted his time, because I'm down the mountain for several minutes. When she turns back toward me, her eyes are softer and there's." Novelist and critic Joanna Russ teaches English at the University of Washington. When our starting book reviewer, Algis Budrys, tires, our favorite relief reviewer is Ms. Russ. Here she offers a fascinating article (in response to some critical letters) which tells why critics are such snobs and are so vitriolic, among many other things. "I waited and waited and never did hear a shot." "175." "Now don't be like that. Treason is a necessary part of the job, the way that handling trash cans is a what. In the end, they just stood there silently twisting their hands and looking at the floor. One of them. It'd make a nice educational toy for a child, though. "Are you indeed?" asked Lea, smiling. "A piece of the mirror I am trapped in lies at the bottom of this pool. Once I myself dived from a rock into the blue ocean to retrieve the pearl of white fire I wear on my forehead now. That was the deepest dive ever heard of by man or woman, and this pool is ten feet deeper than that. Will you still try?" "There's still something missing from our picture," Song had told them the night before, when she delivered her summary of what she had learned. "Marry hasn't been able to find a mechanism that would permit these things to grow by ingesting sand and rock and turning it into plasticlike materials. So we assume there is a reservoir of something like crude oil down there, maybe frozen in with the water." The clerk had the license with his name on it, Barry Riordan, right there in her hand. A faint orange glow outlined the top of a craggy boulder, and they hurried toward it over the crumbly ledge. When they climbed the rock, they saw that the light came from behind another wall of stone further away, and they scrambled toward it, pebbles and bits of ice rolling under their hands. Behind the wall they saw that the light was even stronger above another ridge, and they did their best to climb it without falling who-knows-how-many hundreds of feet to the foot of the mountain. At last they pulled themselves onto the ledge and leaned against the side, panting. Far ahead of them, orange flames flickered brightly and there was light on each face. For all the cold wind their faces were still shiny with the sweat of the effort. "But you were one of the best, everyone knows that.
